Russia Seeks for First Time to Use Veto at Meeting

Security Council Adjourns Without Deciding Question Concerning Greece

LONDON, Feb. 4 (AP).—Russia sought for the first time to use its veto power in the United Nations Security Council tonight in an effort to prevent discussion at this meeting of Soviet charges of endangering the peace by keeping troops in Greece.

The potentially powerful 11-member council adjourned, however, without deciding whether the Russians, as a disputing party, could invoke the veto at this stage of the proceedings.

Russia raised the veto issue after six and a half hours of sometimes acrimonious debate in which Foreign Secretary Bevin, of Britain, gave "the lie direct" to Russian charges that Britain was guilty of endangering peace—the "most diabolical crime of mankind," Mr. Bevin said.

Only a few minutes earlier, the Soviet Foreign Vice-Commissar, Andrei Vishinsky, had dropped Russian demands for council action against British troops in Greece, although demanding assurance the forces would be withdrawn "as soon as possible."

The council was just preparing to vote on an Egyptian resolution, clearing Britain of the charge of endangering world peace, when M. Vishinsky sought to invoke the provision of the United Nations Charter under which five permanent members—France, Britain, Russia, United States and China—would have had to vote unanimously.

If will vote against the Egyptian proposal," M. Vishinsky shouted, then began arguing that under the charter thing must be unanimity among the Big Five on such actions.

Other council members immediately questioned whether a charter provision would apply which provides that countries that are parties to disputes must refrain from voting.

That brought the council around to the question whether the Greek issue is technically a dispute involving Britain and Russia. Earlier, the council president, Nor man A. Makin, of Australia, had pointed out it had not been said in council that it was a dispute.

The council then became engaged in a maze of legalities under the chaser, which, Mr. Makin said, could only be dealt with "after we have cleared our minds of the fog overnight."

The Egyptian proposal had been taken up after the council quickly

From Europe Day by Day—

By THE TIMES, London

News and Comment on International Events selected from The Times daily and published in The Daily Colonist by special arrangement with The Vancouver Daily Province

LONDON, Feb. 4 — The British loan could scarcely have been recommended to Congress at less propitious time, says The Times today in an editorial entitled "American Cross Currents."

The bill is sponsored by an Administration which has lost control of Congress and is projected into a political scene of marked confusion.

Experienced prophets in the United States are finding it hard to foresee political weather.

While strikes continue, there is a hopeful feeling that the conciliation shown in some industries may be infectious. Above all, the fear weighing on many American minds months ago that extremists on both sides are determined to bring about a spectacular showdown between labor and capital have been lifted.

The hopes and fears excited by the return of John L. Lewis to the A.F. of L. show how the political landmarks are changing. This arch rebel is being fawned by mods and smiles from some of the most conservative elements in the Republican party and big business.

It is like Robin Hood being given a reception by the sheriff of Nottingham.

Washington presents all the baffling uncertainties of the period of transition. There is nothing novel in the conflict between the President and Congress, but it is no derogation to say virtues of Mr. Truman to say that what he has inherited many of the pitfalls of his predecessor he has never been able to see the enchanter's wand.

Without some understanding of these cross-currents in American affairs, the treatment of the British loan in Congress is likely to cause bewilderment and even irritation in Britain.

The course through Congress will probably be tardy and exotic latter debates in which wounding things will be said.

Dr. Cleveland Declines to Test Water

Disappointment that Dr. K. C. Cleveland, Vancouver water commissioner, had declined to take tests of Victoria water was expressed by Alderman Edward Williams at a City Council meeting yesterday.

"Dr. Cleveland has been mentioned so many times as the greatest authority in Canada on Victoria's water," Alderman Williams said, "and I am gravely disappointed that he finds himself unable to make the tests."

Alderman J. A. Worthington thought Dr. Cleveland showed good sense in keeping out of such a controversial issue.

The council empowered Dr. Rutherford Pitton, medical health officer, to obtain the services of some other expert.

Seek Additional Ferry Service

With the object of making possible a through road tour from Saanich Peninsula to Ball Spring Island and back to Vancouver Island at Crofton, and at the same time relieving pressure on the sometimes overburdened Swartz Bay ferry, a deputation waited upon members of the Cabinet at the Legislative Buildings yesterday to urge a new ferry service to connect Vesuvius Bay on Ball Spring Island and Crofton on Vancouver Island.

At present the only daily ferry service between Vancouver Island and Salt Spring is between Swartz Bay and Fulford Harbor.

The delegation comprised Samuel Guthrie, M.L.A. for Cowichan-Newcastle; Gordon Mouat and J. B. Acland, Salt Spring Island, and Kenneth Duncan, representing the Duncan Chamber of Commerce.

The representations were heard by Hon. C. D. Byrne, Provincial Secretary and acting Premier, and Hon. Herbert Anscomb, Minister of Public Works.

Farmers' Institutes Seek New Bounties on Predatory Animals

New bounties and new scales of existing bounties on predatory animals in British Columbia will probably be urged upon the Provincial Government by the advisory boards of the Farmers' Institutes of British Columbia.

The board, holding its annual meeting in Victoria this week has on its agenda a Vancouver Island district resolution urging the immediate establishment of a $10 bounty on bears both adult and cub.

It is the contention of the district organization that predators of all kinds in Vancouver is urgently needed and that heavy loss of life is being incurred in the Comox area in particular, through depredations of bear. One farmer lost 45 sheep and another 25.

Fraser Valley institutes, concerned over the increase in the number of cougar and the damage done by them, are recommending that the present cougar bounty be increased to $30.

To encourage the destruction of cougars, said to be causing considerable loss to farmers, Vancouver Island institutes have submitted a resolution requesting the Government to impose a suitable bounty.

An open season on bears and an increase in the bounty on timber wolves to $20 a head is recommended by the institutes of the Peace River district, where it is reported bears and wolves are becoming more numerous and are destroying hundreds of dollars worth of livestock, besides a large amount of wild game.

Kamloops district institutes consider that coyote action should be sufficient evidence of destruction to warrant payment of a bounty.

Payment of a bounty of $5 for each coyote killed is recommended in addition to the bounty.

A Cariboo resolution requests that the Government support the British Columbia Cattlemen's Association to have the grizzly bear hunter, to be paid by the commission.

Resolutions in general terms from other districts also urge a full-scale war against predatory animals, with increased bounties for their destruction.

On the other side, Lower Fraser Valley, concerned over loss of cattle shot by careless hunters, is urging that the Game Commission should accumulate funds for proper compensation for such losses and provide the necessary machinery for claims.

Big London Parade To Mark Victory

LONDON, Feb. 4 (Reuters)—Victory parade, a great victory parade will be held in London next June 8. A ministerial committee has chosen that day as "Victory Day," suggesting that troops of the Allied powers and representatives of the Civil Defence Services and the Home Guard march in the parade. The King would take the salute in front of Buckingham Palace.

Aquitania Completes Rough Trip

Canadian Servicemen Suffer From Storm

HALIFAX, Feb. 4 (CP). — Coated with ice from stem to stern, the 45,000-ton troopship Aquitania, docked here tonight after with 2,485 passengers after the roughest trip in the history of the ship's staff captain, H. D. Grinrod, veteran of more than 200 Atlantic crossings.

Terrific seas plagued the liner's course as she traveled at reduced speed—two days at an average of 16 knots instead of more than 20 to 56 feet smashed down on her bow, to delay her arrival by more than 24 days.

"It was the worst trip I have experienced in 40 years," said Staff Captain Grinrod, former chief officer on the Empress of Britain and staff captain on the Queen Elizabeth on four of her postwar voyages.

Among the 2,485 on the ship's hospital, Maj. F. A. Jamieson of Winnipeg was still busy treating seasick soldiers, many of whom were extremely ill from the effects of the turbulent seas.

Maj. Jamieson was kept busy from the 20 to 30 hours a day, he said, adding liquid diets for passengers all over the ship.

Included among the passengers were 1,331 army, 987 RCAF and 80 RCN. He civilians, and a few British officials of the Navy and the Merchant Navy personnel. Among the civilian passengers was Florence Desmond, well-known British actress who is on her way to fulfill a contract in a Montreal cabaret.

Fifteen troop trains, one every hour on the hour, will leave Halifax, starting early in the morning

Debate Public Nuisances at City Council

Just what constitutes a public nuisance? This was the subject of a lively exchange at a meeting of the City Council yesterday afternoon.

A complaint from W. E. Gurney, stating that a number of old cars parked on a vacant lot near 1135 Johnson Avenue comprised an eyesore, started the discussion.

Alderman J. D. Hunter noted that the same complaint had been brought un before and wanted to know why something hadn't been done about it.

A. J. Pulton, city solicitor, told the council there was no law covering this particular nuisance.

"Does a rubbish only mean a bad smell?" Alderman H. M. Diggon wanted to know. He thought there should be some means of removing the undesirable junk, holding that it spoiled the landscape and therefore depreciated property.

Speaking of nuisances, said Alderman Edward Williams, what can we do about barking dogs?

"And roosters?" added Mr. Pulton.

On a suggestion from Alderman R. A. C. Dewar, the council decided a by-law to take care of objections able articles placed in vacant lots should be introduced in the near future.

Yarrows to Build Tug and Barges

Yarrows Ltd has been successful, under keen competition, in obtaining orders for one powerful 120-foot tug and four large steel tank barges, it was reported last night.

The tug and barges will be completely fabricated by Yarrows Ltd., and then shipped to Waterways, Alta., where they will be assembled and launched. Work will start immediately.

It is understood these vessels will be used in connection with uranium mines at Eldorado Mines.

The same shipyard has also been successful in obtaining a contract for the construction of a shallow draft tug and one large steel oil barge, to be erected and launched at Port Nelson, B.C. It is understood these vessels will be used by the Imperial Oil Company for operations on the Mlsquea and Liard Rivers.

The Castlegar ferry, being built for the Provincial Government in Yarrows, No. 2 yard, is now well under way, and operations are now being made for a steel bridge to be erected at Haslam Creek.

Assembly to Meet In New York Next

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—The United Nations Assembly will hold its next session September 3 in New York City, N.B.C. said in a broadcast from London tonight.

Housing Biggest Problem Mackenzie Tells Veterans

Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of Veterans' Affairs, spoke for a quarter of an hour and weathered a storm of questions for an hour and twenty minutes at a meeting of Britannia Branch, Canadian Legion, last night.

"I'm your public servant and I'm here to answer questions as best I can," he said, challenging the 300 veterans present to put him to the test. They accepted the challenge. The minister answered or parried a multitude of queries which encompassed everything from pensions and tetranal medical services to ship-building and the Japanese problem.

Robert Knight, chairman of zone council, Canadian Legion, presided over the meeting and the speaker was introduced by E. R. Mayhew, M.P., who called him "the man who spends more time in his seat in the House of Commons than anyone else, minister of backbenches."

Mr. Mackenzie, in his 15-minute speech, said that unemployment was purely a temporary problem and would be on the way to solution in a few months when reconversion released Canada's enormous spending power. He urged veterans not to spend their gratuities hastily and to apply for out-of-work benefits if unemployed. He expressed the opinion that all housing should be under Federal control, that the Ivey-der one central authority, and declared the housing problem "the biggest problem in the Dominion of Canada."

He praised the work of the House of Commons committee on veterans' affairs, stating that politics had never entered discussion of veterans welfare. To the coming meeting of this committee he referred many of the scores of questions which veterans asked.

Citizens Stay At U.N. Site

LONDON, Feb. 4 (CP).—The site selection committee which advised the United Nations Organization to establish world headquarters in the United States-controlled area on the Connecticut-New York State border also recommended that city area living in the zone be allowed to continue residence unless there is immediate need for their buildings and land.

"If there is an international community of some thousands of people living in the headquarters," said the report, "shops, service stations, etc. will be necessary, and it is to be presumed that they will be operated by American citizens . . . we feel that it would be more desirable to permit them to reside within the zone."

Assembly to Meet In New York Next

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—The United Nations Assembly will hold its next session September 3 in New York City, N.B.C. said in a broadcast from London tonight.

C.I.O. Calls Stoppage In New York

To Last Two Hours And Support Strike

NEW YORK, Feb. 4 (CP).— The Greater New York Council of the Congress of Industrial Organizations tonight called a two-hour work stoppage next Monday of most of the 800,000 C.I.O. members in this city. The time would be 3 to 5 p.m., C.S.T.

The C.I.O. Council called for the stoppage "to protest the failure of responsible union members to stage a demonstration in support of the month-long strike of the C.I.O. American Communications Association against the Western Union Telegraph Company in New York City and vicinity.

The strike of 7,000 Western Union workers here is in protest against a wage award by the company and by the A.F.L. Commercial Telegraphers Union, which bargains for some 45,000 Western Union employees in other sections of the country, but was rejected as inadequate by the C.I.O. union.

C.I.O. workers in light, heat, power, transit, news and newspaper occupations were not called out, but their jobs in the walkout. Those engaged in such services also were exempted.

Those who leave their work were asked to gather in the Western Union's main building at 60 Hudson Street and take part in a demonstration on behalf of the strikers.

The walkout call was issued after a meeting of the Greater New York C.I.O Council and the joint C.I.O. Political Support Committee of New York City.

Greenwich People Chided by Paper

LONDON, Feb. 4 (CP).—The Star in a sharply-worded editorial today chided three citizens of Greenwich, Conn., who have protested the choice of their locality as headquarters for the United Nations.

The editorial, entitled "Peck Pride," said:

"So Mayor Wilbur Peck smells at the United Nations. The anonty residents of Greenwich, Conn., don't want a lot of foreigners in their locality. They believe their presence will lower the tone of the locality.

"But one thing these citizens who has heard of the big world outside told the objectors that they would have to swallow it with the bitter tasting stock of the world. Well, maybe Greenwich does smell. But the stench can be as petty, as insular and as selfish as this, the world has little room for it. Greenwich is not the only place where the ideals of United Nations will take a long time to soak in."

Say Mass Graves Contain Prisoners

LONDON, Feb. 4 (CP).—The Moscow radio quotes a dispatch from Warsaw said tonight a Soviet-Polish investigating commission has established that mass graves near Katyn, Poland, contained the bodies of 100,000 Allied prisoners of war.

Yukon Breaks Up While 47 Children, Women Taken Off

Weather and Sea Conditions Improving Slightly—Flying Forts Join in Rescue

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, Feb. 4 (AP).—The liner Yukon broke in two tonight, its forward part remaining fast aground in Johnstone Bay and the after part "falling to starboard," the coast guard cutter Onondaga reported tonight as it fought to rescue the 449 persons apparently still aboard.

The 165-feet long cutter said it had removed 47 women and children jo its own decks before the ship broke. The Onondaga in two power boats fought ivy water and high waves to effect the rescue.

The report said the weather and sea conditions were improving slightly after hours of gale winds and lowering waves buffeted the vessel.

Meanwhile at Anchorage Gen. Delos Emmons ordered all B-17 Flying Fortresses carrying power rescue boats to come in from the Aleutian chain and aid in the rescue work.

There was no mention of loss of life in the Onondaga's report. The coast guard said other vessels were due at the scene within the next few hours to assist in the battle against time and weather.

The weather bureau at Anchorage said the storm, which seemed to have centered its fury on the ran-soomed and the rescuers, was moving off to the east southeast.

Reuter reports converged on the scene to aid the Onondaga. Her sister cutter Comanche, in a relay dispatch ersh, St. Zaliuski, the Sh. North Haven, the U.S.S. Coral and the T-P 141 are were moving to Johnstone Bay on the Kenai Peninsula.

The Onondaga reported the Yukon's position in Johnstone Bay, ten miles from Cape Puget. The Coast Guard ship's content ofhs said Onondaga's crew had been regarded and exact location of the grounded vessel was to some doubt.

Snow cut visibility and the Onondaga's radio was out of order, the report reports. The Coast Guard at Seattle said the Yukon 'probably will not sail now. The engine-

Delegates to Peace Talks Are Discussed

OTTAWA, Feb. 4 (CP). — Nature and composition of Canadian representation at the peace conference in Paris and the duties of delegations headquarters was understood tonight to have been the topic of Cabinet discussions.

It was reliably learned no decision will be taken for several weeks in the case of the peace conference and perhaps some months yet in the case of the United Nations Organization, the drawing-of boundaries, the movement of minorities, safeguards to public freedom and kindred matters.

Only Germany's satellites are being dealt with at the initial conference. A responsible German group will have to be established first before that country can be considered.

Recruit it was reported that Prime Minister Mackenzie King would name John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, to the Canadian delegation.

Gen. Sir Arthur Currie, commander of the Canadian Overseas Forces in the First Great War, was the chief military technician with the Canadian Versailles delegation and it would seem reasonable to assume that the Second Great War army commander, recently made an honorary Canadian, due to retire on March 1, plans to fly to Vancouver Saturday and will then go from there to Ottawa.

It might be declined to talk about military or political matters, Chief of General Staff General Eisenhower, describing him as a leader who would be rated in history as one of the greatest military strategists of all time

He also said he hoped the interchange of ideas between American, British and Canadian armies during the war would continue

Say Tax Receipts To Be $1,577,145

Estimated receipts from taxes on lands and improvements in 1946 total $1,577,145, an increase of $31,-960 over last year, according to a report submitted to Mayor Percy E. George yesterday by D. A. Recoden, old, city controller.

Revenues from sources other than land and improvements is also totaled $1,088,199. If this figure is maintained in 1946 it will be the revenue this year of $2,663,345 is indicated

Unavoidable expenditures for 1946 are listed as $646,137 for debt charges, plus $2,500 for brokerage on debentures.

Expenditures in last year's estimates not required in 1946 according to Mr Macdonald's report, include a grant for the-inventory wing of the Provincial Museum of $45,000 and a payment for water to Saanich of $4,132.

Biggest Charge of Explosive Ever Set Off Provides Anti-Climax on Surface

CALGARY, Feb. 4 (CP).—The biggest charge of explosive ever set off was blasted this afternoon at the 4,800 foot level of the West Canada Creek mine of the Turner Valley oil field.

The charge broke the big boom with an anti-climax. Some ground tremors were reported but the only visible result was the mammoth explosion of 2,300 quarts of nitro-glycerin in a boundless pool of water forced up by the tremendous subterranean pressure.

Geologists and oil experts now await determination of the exact results of the blast following a series of preparation and an expenditure of $60,000 which may be returned many times over if the test has been successful in freeing millions of barrels of oil locked in a Madison limestone formation. The blast was set off at 4.35 p.m. E.S.T.

A real shock was felt at Royal No. 4 half a mile north and west of West Plank No. 1. Earth tremors recorded northwest of the well under experiment—showed the explosion to have followed the natural forecast. as main violence being directed north-westerly in lanes through the blast Hendrix Green one of the men chiefly responsible for it, said a few minutes afterwards. "From indications so far it was a . . . stutely . . . but"

"It will take perhaps 12 to 18 days to find out that," waved in the well be sth the surface," he added.

Final preparations for the explosion which, if successful, is expected to result in field rejuvenation of the Turner Valley and subsequently other limestone oil fields, began at noon, when water was poured on top of the nitroglycerin.

The intricate explosion mechanism, more than a mile below the earth's surface, began operating after sufficient water to bring pressure on the sliver pins to nine tons had been poured in

"End of World" Play Causes Panic

PARIS, Feb. 4 (CP).—Parisian radio listeners were panic-stricken tonight by a too vivid radio play depicting atomic bomb experiments in the Pacific getting out of control and "shaving the earth to pieces."

It was only a play in news commentator style, but the hysteria of listeners who deluged police stations and newspaper offices with telephone calls approached that provoked several years ago in the United States by Orson Welles' radio drama concerning an invasion from Mars.

Crerar Visits With Merrill In California

SAN FRANCISCO Feb. 4 (AP).— General H. D. G. Crerar, Commander of the First Canadian Army Overseas, called unofficially at military headquarters of the Pacific coast today

He was greeted by Maj.-Gen Frank Merrill, famed leader of Merrill's Marauders and Acting Commander of the Western Defense Command

Gen. Crerar, in California for the first time, is visiting a sister, Mrs. Robert B. Gillespie, wife of the retired Canadian doc to retire on March 1, plans to fly to Vancouver Saturday and then go from there to Ottawa.

Although he declined to talk about military or political matters, Chief of General Staff General Eisenhower, describing him as a leader who would be rated in history as one of the greatest military strategists of all time

He also said he hoped the interchange of ideas between American, British and Canadian armies during the war would continue

Farmers of Province Gather Here To Discuss Problems of Industry

Delegates from the 10 districts into which the 300 Farmers' Institutes of British Columbia are organized assembled at the Legislative Buildings yesterday morning for the three-day annual meeting of the Institutes' Advisory Board. With some 140 resolutions on the one relating to the Japanese question, the board has a heavy session ahead.

William Harrison, Kamloops, was elected convention chairman, and Woodburn was elected vice-chairman. The election of officers for the coming year will take place tomorrow, final day of the meeting.

Delegates attending the meeting are: Sydney Pickles, Vancouver Island and Gulf Islands; William Harrison, Kamloops; George Brandon, Skeena and Buckley; T. F. Gerhart, Nechako; A. H. Pepper, Lower Fraser Valley; W. Shipmaker, West-Kootenay; J. Woodburn, Similkameen-Okanagan. E. Greenlee—Carlson, Jack Ayr, East Kootenay and Edward Dunn, Peace River.

The annual report presented by William J. Bonavia, secretary to the board, showed a total institute membership in the province of about 7,000. In 1944, the last full year for which data was available, 146 institutes were carrying on co-operative work for their members, as against 118 in 1943.

NEW RECORDS IN PURCHASES ARE SET

Records of the group system for the purchase of supplies were established in 1945. Purchases of fertilizer, powder, fuel and caps amounting to $44,110 represented an increase of 80 per cent, and purchases of seed, feed, fertilizer, etc., amounting to $276,230 showed an increase of 36.6 per cent, breaking all previous records.

The meeting yesterday morning passed resolutions urging the ministry of agriculture to re-establish the grants formerly made to local agricultural fairs and to inaugurate classes for farmers to be held in each area during the Winter months, each class to be of one week's duration and confined to one particular branch of agriculture, conducted by a specialist. It was suggested that the classes should be continued from year to year, and that farmers attending should contribute to the cost.

Pointing out that many young people and returned men wishing to take up farming had no practical farm experience, a Shuswap-Okanagan resolution urged the Government to establish an agricultural school in the Interior, patterned somewhat after a school at Oliver, Ala. The suggestion will be discussed with the legislative standing committee on agriculture, together with a Peace River resolution recommending the establishment of a similar school in the Peace River country.

An East Kootenay resolution that action be taken to have owners of sheep and goats keep their animals under cover of a border to prevent damage to neighboring farms was turned down.

ASK HIGHER PRICES FOR GLUCOSE FACTORY

In an effort to stop the imposition of orders by the sugar administrator, the Associated Growers of Vegetables, Fruits and Flowers Ltd. must reduce its service charge for the conversion of potatoes into glucose, the meeting ordered a resolution sponsored by Burnaby, Richmond, Delta and Surrey Co-operative Association strongly protesting any changes in the present prices. It was pointed out that price changes would not help the consuming public and would possibly close markets for cull and surplus potatoes.

Institution of a Government policy of calfhood vaccination similar to that practised in Alberta was recommended in a Kamloops resolution.

In view of greatly increased land settlement in the Province, the Kamloops resolution recommending that the Government be asked to appoint a considerably increased number of district agriculturists and assistants.

Lost on a show of hands was a resolution requesting the Government to confer with the executive of the British Columbia Federation of Agriculture on the possibility of district central institutes affiliating with the Federation.

The board failed to endorse a resolution that all farmers' institutes should be granted similar privileges to those of co-operatives in regard to maintenance of a substantial reserve fund.

URGE RE-ESTABLISH TRAINING SCHOOLS

Re-establishment at an early date of the youth training schools in rural communities, operated a few years ago, was advocated in resolutions supported by the Revelstoke and Peace River districts. The resolutions drawn attention to the possibility of military buildings at Prince George being utilized for the purpose and recommended establishment of schools of agriculture on a broader scale than the former youth training schools.

Direct producer to consumer distribution as far as possible of chemical fertilizers was requested of the Government in resolutions from West-Kootenay.

The Department of Agriculture was urged to take the necessary steps to familiarize farmers with weed pests infesting seed grains and grasses.

Minister Under Fire Of Queries

"How many fishing vessels sold by War Assets have been sold to members of the armed forces?"

That was one of the questions Veterans' Affairs was asked this question at a meeting of ex-service-men at Britannia Branch, Canadian Legion, last night.

Mr. MacKenzie said he could not answer. This was one of the problems to come before the parliamentary committee, he had told Hallais, he stated.

Asked about shipyard layoffs, he said every possible attempt was being made to obtain substantial shipbuilding orders from Europe and the Orient.

Another member of the audience asserted that Capt. T. H. Evans, engineer superintendent of H.M.C.S. Dockyard, Esquimalt, had told him he was not observing the policy of priority to ex-servicemen.

As long as I am in this government veterans will receive preference," Mr. Mackenzie said. He was given a copy of a petition from dockyard employees protesting the recent layoff of 40 employees.

Another veteran said he had "got the merry-run-around" when he tried to buy tools from the War Assets office in Montreal. Replying to such tools brought through War Assets were for sale to ex-service-men stores at a high price. He asserted that a man who had previously been military service had approached him and offered to give him an introduction to a war assets official. "He would look after his needs, if approached in the "back door."

WORLD GIVE EDGE TO WAR VETERAN

A plea was also pressed for preference for ex-servicemen in getting goods from War Assets," Mr. Mackenzie declared. He asked the committee veterans to submit details of the affair promptly.

A veteran of two wars complained he was turned down for the Civil Service because he had not been overseas in this war.

"Apply to me," said Mr. Mackenzie.

"Why are we shipping lumber overseas when homes are needed here? The lumber is going to build homes for the Russian and European mans. How about our own people at home?" someone asked indignantly.

It was necessary to ship lumber to the United States, said Mr. Mackenzie, because that country would supply certain building essentials unobtainable here.

BACKS DIRECT SALE TO EX-SERVICEMEN

A protest was registered over the price of second-hand cars and the impossibility of obtaining vehicles through War Assets. The questioner suggested that there was a way to help the veteran who needed a car in the business.

"I have always advocated the same thing. You can rest assured we are not asleep on the job," was the reply.

An ex-member of overseas fighting forces pointed out that his comrades were eligible for priority lists but not credits and were now subject to income tax on money earned overseas. Mr. Mackenzie replied that a bill providing for ajustiary services would shortly be considered.

Jap economic penetration before the war and a "movement to return the Japs to British Columbia," were mentioned by another member of the audience. "No one has been more outspoken than I on that question," said Mr. Mackenzie, observing that he advocated exclusion of Japanese on economic rather than racial grounds.

Asked about British Columbia's 1,000,000 acres for veterans, he said that the cost of clearing much of it would be prohibitive.

Yukon Breaks Up

room sag! No. 3 hold are flooded, the ship is breaking up fore and aft."

William Baker, publisher of The Ketchikan Chronicle, said the Coast Guard there was "hopeful the ship would ride out the night."

The Yukon left Seward for Seattle last night with 271 passengers and a crew of 126. An Alaska Line spokesman in Seattle said probably 250 of the passengers were military men, outbound for discharge.

In a message reported at 1:45 a.m. (P.S.T.), Capt. Chris F. Troudson said the veteran liner, known to thousands of tourists and Alaskans, was "breaking up fore and aft," and the passengers and crew were still aboard.

An hour and 35 minutes earlier, at 12:10 a.m. (P.S.T.), he had also reported the ship was breaking up fast.

Life spray was being hurled over the decks and a choppy sea, with 30-foot waves, was still heaving the ship, the captain's latest message said.

There are four other vessels, the cutter Cedar, the navy salvage ship Curb and two minesweepers, had reported during the day they were going to the assistance of the navy ships were on their way from Kodiak here when diverted towards the Yukon.

The Yukon, a steel twin screw steamship built by Philadelphia in 1899, has plied in the Alaska trade for about 30 years and is widely known along the Pacific Coast.

Britain May Free 5,000,000 Workers

LONDON, Feb. 4 (CP).—Early in May nearly 2,000,000 British auxiliary workers tied to their jobs because they are essential-work employees will be freed from that control, the Labor Ministry announced today.

Then all but 3,000,000 workers in vital coal mining, munitions and agricultural work will be able to look for new jobs if they wish without permission from National Selective Service.

Other Major Marine Disasters In Coast Waters Are Recalled

VANCOUVER, Feb. 4 (CP).—Breaking up of the liner Yukon in Alaska waters tonight recalled memories of other major Canadian and American marine disasters in coastal waters.

Most recent was the loss of the explosion of unknown origin of the United States Liberty ship John Hirsuh, which, burning, left a high-octane gasoline, sank April 12, 1944, in the Northern Canadian waters with the loss of 58 lives.

Other losses included:

Steamer Islander, lost in Stephens Passage, August, 14, 1901, with loss of 42 lives.

Bark Star of Bengal, wrecked off Coronation Island, September 20, 1908, 112 lost.

Steamer State of California, sunk near Dewdney Bay, August 17, 1913, with 38 lives lost.

Steamer Princess Sophia, lost off Juneau, October 26, 1918, with 331 persons drowned.

Steamer Nereda, lost September 28, 1922, Aleutian Island, with 32 lives lost.

Liberty ship John P. Gaines, broke in two off Alaska coast, November 28, 1943 with loss of ten lives.

Latest disaster to a Canadian ship was the loss of the Canadian National Steamships Prince George, which grounded north of Prince Rupert with the loss of one life.

More than ten deep-sea and coastal ships have been wrecked on Ripple Rock, some miles south.

Most recent disaster on the rock, in Seymour Narrows, was March 18, 1944, when nine men employed by Foley, Welch and Stewart in removal of the rock disappeared in their 35-foot gasboat while crossing the Narrows.

Blood Thicker Than Politics

TCLLAND, Mass., Feb. 4 (AP).—The Clark family was in again today, following a generation-old custom. At the annual town meeting members of the family were elected to seven of the town's 12 posts. Cousins brothers, aunts and uncles took the positions of two of the three selectmen, constable, library committee and three wardens.

"Married Man and Happy" No Desire for Kissing Matches

VEGREVILLE, Alta., Feb. 4 (CP).—E. R. Graham, 44-year-old ex-soldier of this town 37 miles east of Edmonton, wants it known that he considers his avocation of a "kissing expert" a legitimate business.

"Since I have been in this town I have had today in a letter to an Edmonton newspaper. "I wish also to state that at no time did I ask any girl or lady in this town for a kissing match. I am a married man and happy."

In his letter, Mr. Graham took exception to much of the publicity which has come his way since Edmonton Chamber of Commerce sounded a call for men with queer occupations.

Particularly he frowned upon such news stories as have been printed without his knowledge especially one which he described as an intrusive, "I do not like to be used at the time, and he feels the "facts" gleaned from Fellow townsfolk came from people who do not teach in sympathy with his throaty objectives.

A reporter who visited Vegreville in Mr. Graham's absence wrote that the kissing expert was causing no palpitations among its female population, but admitted the evidence was purely circumstantial because he didn't see the Sultan of Smooch.

"If Mr. Graham has any extraordinary talent in a field popular with the masses for generations, many who work and live with him in Vegreville are unaware of it. The alleged expert is a cook in a neat little cafe on Vegreville's main street.

"He was a cook before the war. He was a cook in the Canadian Army during the war. There are some in Vegreville who say he's still a cook—and nothing else."

Several attractive local girls replied "no" emphatically when asked if Mr. Graham had enlightened them on his newly-found technique. "He can't teach me a thing," one sniffed.

The story to which Mr. Graham takes exception says Vegreville's male population regards him with indifference, expresses no alarm over his prowess.

To this, Mr. Graham replies that he has no hard feelings toward anyone for speaking their minds on me when they do not know me or what I have done. But when that people say about him "letters are still pouring in," and they will be answered as soon as he is able to attend to them.

Six Months Jail For Motor Theft

Foiling guilty of stealing an electric motor from a garage, was sentenced by Magistrate Henry C. Hall in city police court yesterday morning to six months in jail.

Evidence showed that Kirkwood had stolen the motor and sold it to a second-hand dealer. He pleaded that he had been intoxicated and that he had no recollection of doing it.

Pleading not guilty to a charge of assault on Kenneth Lowe and occasioning actual bodily harm, Victor P. Merriman was remanded until February 7. The evidence followed an automobile accident Sunday. Merriman is charged to have struck Lowe causing him to fall to the ground and injure his head.

Au Indian girl was fined $10 or three days for being intoxicated in a public place and a white man was fined $25 or five days for the same offence. Bail of $25 was entered when a second man lailed to appear on a charge of being intoxicated.

J. Wada, who pleaded not guilty to a charge of keeping liquor for sale and Edward Phillips, who pleaded not guilty to a charge of having liquor, were remanded for trial until Thursday.

"Married Man and Happy" No Desire for Kissing Matches

"I am still as honest about it this today as I ever was," said his letter. "A little talk never killed anyone for he that laughs last laughs loud. The letter was signed. E. R. Graham, kissing expert."

Store Amalgamation As Best Solution

Solution of pressing problems of housing fire police and other civic services at present located in overcrowded and outdated premises, like in amalgamation, according to Alderman R. J. Gadsden, chairman of the business, trade, re-establishment and inter-municipal committee.

Alderman Gadsden said he felt it was a waste of money to attempt to patch up present buildings and urged that efforts be directed to achieving amalgamation of the four municipalities. Permanent and adequate facilities for Greater Victoria could then be planned, he thought. Present plans for alterations might prove inadequate in a very short time if amalgamation was brought about, he said, indicating it was a development which would come eventually.

Cruiser Uganda Leaves Esquimalt Today on First Training Cruise

Naval Service Headquarters announced yesterday that H.M.C.S. Uganda, Canada's first modern cruiser, will leave Esquimalt, Tuesday, on the navy's first postwar extended training cruise.

The cruise will take the ship to ports in Southern, American and West Indies ports, is called for in the cruise program. The Uganda, under the command of Captain F. R. Mainguy, O.B.E., R.C.N., will steam a port-to-port distance of about 16,000 miles from Esquimalt to Halifax by way of Cape Horn, with additional thousands of miles to training manoeuvres before the ship again sees Canada.

Since the primary object of the cruise is training the voyage will be the first long-distance sea journey for many of the ship's present complement of 700 officers and ratings.

Uganda has been commissioned by the first experience of "crossing the line" and for an even greater number it will be the first time around The Horn. Uganda will cross the equator twice during her voyage.

Among those sailing in the ship are 18 seaman officer candidates, recently accepted for a year's preparatory training in Uganda, who will become midshipmen at the end of one year, instead of the two required of naval cadets at the Royal Canadian Naval College at Royal Roads.

The cruise will also provide the first extensive sea training for 15 midshipmen who graduated from R.C.N. College last summer. Twelve of these are executive branch and three others are leaving the ship in the supply and secretarial branch.

Uganda has been commissioned by Commissioned a Canadian warship. A native of British Columbia, Captain Mainguy was chief of naval personnel at Naval Service Headquarters from November 15, 1945, until his appointment to Uganda on August 19, 1946.

Captain Mainguy, in the early part of the war, commanded the destroyer, Assiniboine and Ottawa. He was promoted to his present rank in 1941 and became captain D.S. Halifax that same year. He was awarded the D.S.C. for gallantry and distinguished services before the enemy, while senior officer of convoy escort groups.

The executive officer, second-in-command of the ship, is Commander Edward W. Finch-Noyes, R.C.N.

THE Victoria Senior Troop, the Lion's Own is made up of first and second class Scouts 14 and over from Greater Victoria district, and is skippered by Freeman King, field commissioner with ADC's Ernest Merritt and Hamish Bullen as assistants. On Saturday, the Lion's Own, accompanied by representatives of the Victoria Rover crews, ventured Up-Island to Duncan to put on a display in that town.

The meeting was held at 2:30 in the Guide Hall, and took the form of a regular, unrehearsed troop meeting. Cpl. M. Dopping-Hepenstal, Duncan took flag-break and inspection. Presenting was the first item of the lively program, when two patrols set to work on trestles for a bridge and ran parallel to their energies on a wood-ringed rope ladder. Bridge erected the rope ladder was tested by suspending it from hooks in the ceiling and having lively Scouts clamber up to the top singly and in pairs.

Pioneering was followed by a brief five minutes of stave drill, which emphasized co-ordination and timing, then all four patrols demonstrated the versatility of the Hindenburg line of them moved loaded stretchers over the six-foot trestles and one patrol turned their patient vertically up to the ceiling as it hauling up a cliff or side of a house.

A brisk games period followed, when Duncan Troop joined in with the Lion's Own in fast relay races. Games over, a campfire sing-song was presented, when Duncan Brenda, Rovers and Cubs joined the Victoria Scouts and Cubs. The meeting was brought to a close with flag-down and prayers, after which Duncan regaled Victoria with buns and cocoa.

Island Farmers Need Machinery

NANAIMO, Feb 4 — With the largest attendance on record, the Nanaimo and Cedar Farmers Institute held their annual meeting here Saturday afternoon.

Speakers expressed the impatience of farmers at delay in obtaining land-clearing machinery under a Government - sponsored scheme whereby settlers may obtain the services of bulldozers at cost. Many settlers were losing over 10 head annually lands, and the farmers had been given no notice as to when they could expect machinery to be made available.

Another question discussed was Government policy regarding rehabilitation to farmers through whose land a 66-foot clearing is being made by the British Columbia Power Commission for cable purposes from Campbell River.

E. Bailo Nanaimo was elected president for 1948 with A. A. Wilkinson, Wellington, vice-president, and J. Keown, East Wellington, secretary. Directors are A. Patchelour and J. Baker, Wellington, and A. Janet Cedar. W. L. Dunne, Nanaimo is auditor.

City Will Sell Cordwood at $10

Whether city-owned wood in Garrison land should be sold at $10 a cord or whether it should be sold at all was the subject of a lively exchange at a meeting of the City Council yesterday.

Alderman B. J. Gaudden claimed he had purchased some of the wood for $15 a cord and it should be worth the price.

Alderman J. A. Worthington said the wood should not be sold anyway. It was purchased for emergency use he stated, and should be held for that purpose.

Alderman Morgan said he had to cut up the wood and found that 90 per cent of it was better than any wood being sold in the city at $15 a cord.

He said he had measured the amount of wood in the piles and found it totalled only about the ninth interest of the 400 cords supposed to be stored there.

I can't explain the shrinkage, he added.

The council finally decided to appoint a committee of the four councillors to sell the wood at $10 a cord.

Money Doesn't Mean a Thing Social Crediter Tells Gyro

People are "conditioned" from childhood to think in that manner has a real significance Pat Ashby, Social Credit M.P. for Edmonton East, told a dinner meeting of the Gyro Club in the Empress Hotel yesterday.

"Money isn't anything at all. The dollar is only a sign or a symbol, the same as a mile is a unit of length and a quart is more than you can get in a beer bottle," he told his startling audience.

"This war did not cost us a cent," he contended. Rather the war the Government and people had no money. Roads could not be built and there were thousands of unemployed yet the declaration of war brought forth "an abundance of money."

"Man does not live to work he works to live," Mr. Ashby asserted.

"Tell a starving man he must work men make them do it, or the government compels them to do it work is that which men do because nature compels them to do it. Leisure satisfies the wants men do because they want to do it.

"We have poverty, wretchedness, great insecurity and taxation, and these things are not necessary, he declared.

"Your problem is to force members of Parliament to represent you and your will. It doesn't matter a hat results you want, you can have what you want."

SAYS SOCIAL CREDIT IS POWER TO PROFIT

Social credit is effective—the power to produce the fruits intended, said Mr. Ashby.

Maintenance of a low living cost in Canada during the war was due to the efforts of farmers more than price control authority, he said. Farmers who had worked hard to produce during the war were sickening off because they were not getting a fair return for their labor.

"For every pound of butter we had produced we could produce two more—but it's too much to expect farm men and women to work in toil and toil for nothing but a bare living. On his own farm all dairy cattle had been sold for slaughter," he said.

Mr. Ashby was introduced by Wilham Clark, and thanked by George Hall. Archie McKinnon and Reginald Hatton were introduced as new members.

Government Needs More Space To House Allied Departments

With the gradual creation and the years of new departments, branches of departments, commissions and boards of control, the Provincial Government has far outgrown the office space afforded in the Legislative Buildings proper. Today, the Government and its branches occupy offices scattered all over the town, rented out in almost every direction from the local point where all the members of the Cabinet and their deputies.

With the expansion is inevitable and unavoidable, it makes dealing with Government departments comparatively and fraught with delay, especially for visitors from other parts of the province who come to Victoria with only a short time at their disposal to do business with the Government.

In addition to departmental offices in the Legislative Buildings, there are branch offices of the Government scattered in such a diverse variety of locations as the Campbell and Weiler Buildings, Dominion Bank and Bank of Nova Scotia Buildings, Central Building and 918 Government Street, to say nothing of the multitude of annexes and converted residences in the vicinity of the Legislative Buildings. Which the Government has taken over to its search for room for its growing brood.

Plans have been drawn for a four-story office building in which to centralize many of the offices, but shortage of supplies has so far prevented the Government from going ahead with the project which is still only in the planning stage.

The new building will probably be erected on property on Elliott Street which the Province already owns.

To tide matters with a new and commodious office building not imminently in sight, the Government is having to do a considerable amount of remodelling to make the most convenient and economical use of the offices available.

The fourth floor of the Weiler Building, in which the Government already has offices, is being renovated to provide accommodation for the Provincial Civil Service Commission, now located on the top floor of the Campbell Building, and in the near future the fifth floor will be occupied by branches of the Department of Education.

When the Civil Service Commission moves out of the Campbell Building the economics branch of the Forest Service will move in vacating its present location in the basement of the Legislative Buildings.

Pioneer Okanagan Farmer Dies Here

William Crawley Rivardi pioneer farmer of the Coldstream district in the Okanagan Valley, passed away Sunday in Mount St. Mary's Hospital at the age of 81 years.

Mr. Rivardi was born in Gurcombe, Montbillmuston, Gloucester, England and was educated at Malborough and Queen's College Cambridge.

He came to Canada in 1885 and after spending a short ranch near Calgary, for four years, became manager of Coldstream ranch at Vernon, owned by Lord Aberdeen. During the next 10 years Mr. Rivardi did much to develop the district and being in centres he was instrumental in the building of a large irrigation system and the planting of fruit orchards and hops.

After serving overseas in World War I as a captain in the 47th Western Scots, he returned to Canada in 1919 and took up farming in the Vernon district. About a year ago his health failing he came to Victoria.

Surviving are one son, David and one daughter, Mrs. Brunette Edgell of Vancouver; a sister Mrs. A. Hodges, Victoria and five sisters in England.

Dean S. H. Illsley, D.D. will conduct funeral services today at 1:30 p.m. from Hayward's B.C. Funeral Parlors. Interment will take place in Ross-Bay Cemetery.

Public Market

A lively, clean and well-stocked public market is an asset to any community, and a necessity for both urban and rural reasons. The sale of fresh commodities at first hand from grower to consumer is a useful check on the price structure, and a ready means whereby the producer can earn cash for his labors in the field. The city also needs the country, and no community will develop far without an active and working liaison between its urban areas and the rural environs.

Victoria has been graced with a large and productive hinterland on the southern end of Vancouver Island. It has been said with justice that these fertile acres will grow almost anything once they have been irrigated. That irrigation will come, no doubt, as the need and demand for it grows. Meanwhile, the city proper ought to be making a much more active and sincere bid for the interest and help of these growing areas. Saanich fruits and flowers are known throughout Canada. Metchosin, Happy Valley and many another district likewise contribute something to the general weal of Greater Victoria. At a public market that comes to a focus, as may be easily realized.

One of the progressive features of most other coastal towns is their public market. Sometimes there are several of them, all appearing to do a ready business with the townsfolk concerned. Here town and country meet, and under conditions mutually agreeable. Victoria has had for years a public market, but for almost as long there have been very little enthusiasm or spirit put behind its success. As a city-sponsored venture, a great deal could be done to bring our public market up to date and to give it a fair chance to fulfil its rightful function in a growing community.

New Zealanders

One by one the famous fighting formations of the war are broken up, and the record of their deeds pass into history. Among the latest is the one that carried into battle the colors of the smallest of the four Dominions, the 2nd New Zealand Division, which has now been disbanded. The New Zealanders were renowned and doughty warriors. They were in the field more or less continuously for four years, and the saga of their exploits ranged from Greece to Tripoli.

The maintenance of this division was a severe drain on the resources of so small a country as New Zealand. Of the 100,000 of its men died in battle, and the total casualties were more than 25,000. Probably no other single Allied division suffered so heavily. It had a brilliant commander, Lt.-Gen. Sir Bernard Freyberg, V.C., who led it in Greece and Crete, in the desert campaigns of Libya, and from the toe of the Italian boot to the Po Valley and Trieste. It was one of the most feared divisions of the Eighth Army, and its achievements were notable.

As Canadians who fought alongside the New Zealanders in Italy know, the men from "Down Under" were unconventional when judged by orthodox military standards. They called their officers by their Christian names. They were outlandish in dress, and they hated routine passing it with the most magnificent battle discipline, as opposing German formations learned by bitter experience, and a tenacity unshaken by adverse circumstances. They drew admiration from their Allied comrades, and they left behind in the Mediterranean area, where they served throughout the war, a reputation second to none.

For a country whose population is but one-seventh that of the Dominion of Canada the contribution made by New Zealand soldiers to the common victory ranks highly. Added to the effort of its sailors and airmen, it entitles our sister Dominion to the respect and esteem of all the peoples of the British Commonwealth of Nations and of their Allies.

To Be Hanged

General Tomoyuki Yamashita the tiger Japanese war leader to be tried in the Pacific as a war criminal, lost his appeal yesterday to the Supreme Court of the United States. That tribunal held his trial and conviction in order, and declined to set aside the death penalty. So General Yamashita will be hanged for his share in the cold-blooded, brutal manner in which the Japanese beat down the unarmed natives in the Philippines during the invasion of that territory.

It is a long and a miserable record. Evidence adduced at the trial showed that there was no humanity at all about the Japanese troops under Yamashita. He was accused of condoning these atrocities, and the atrocities themselves were witnessed times without number. As the commanding officer of the Philippines invasion, Yamashita was responsible for what his troops did in the field. And what they did was to ram amok. That seems to have been a settled policy of murder and brutality, without military reason or human justification of any nature whatever.

General Yamashita, it was reported, wept as character witnesses described him as a kind-hearted man. Yet this kind-hearted man let troops run riot among a defenceless people, upon whom they visited every conceivable form of abuse, torture and death. Handsome is as handsome does and always that will be true. There was little soldierly, manly or human about the manner in which Yamashita handled the invasion of the Philippines. He has been convicted by a competent military tribunal of failure to prevent, and of condoning, atrocities. He is to be hanged, as a lesson to those who still think that might makes right; or that war, awful as it is, goes without rules of any kind.

Hospitality

A favorite topic among returned servicemen and women is the hospitality they received in various communities during the years they traveled back and forth across Canada or when overseas. The kindliness and attention that marked their stay in any one of a dozen places is something they always speak of with gratitude and a warm feeling of friendliness. It is one of the memories that will be the last to fade as their war experience recede into the background.

That being so, the decision of the local Citizens' War Services Hospitality Committee to continue the work they began as a war emergency is a commendable one. That city and its environs gained a good name during the years of the widespread nature of entertainment and hospitality rendered countless thousands of servicemen and women who passed or paused through it, is a fact of important station embracing all three services. Greater Victoria was a hive of military activity, and not the least of the contributions made by citizens of this area to the war effort was the friendly welcome given to those in uniform. Many homes kept open house continually, and organizations of all kinds vied in showering hospitality on their wartime visitors.

Much of that good work can still be carried on Esquimalt will be a permanent naval base and peacetime military activity will no doubt bring many soldiers and airmen to this area. But the welcome extended to servicemen away from home than a touch of home wherever they are. That is what the Hospitality Committee provides, through the medium of those who volunteer to throw their doors open to provide entertainment and social amenities for men in uniform. It can be taken for granted that the same courteous greeting will make members of the permanent forces feel as much at home here as did their wartime predecessors.

Deferred Drive

The present campaign to complete funds needed for the furnishing and eventual opening of the new Memorial Auditorium at the Royal Jubilee Hospital is a continuation of the drive that was launched last year and suspended then on account of Victory Loan and other campaigns. It is hoped, in short, stepped down so that other appeals might go through. That was a generous action, and it should be remembered now that the final appeal is being made to the public under the same head. The Kiwanis Club is to be congratulated upon shouldering the work of the drive, and can have little difficulty in raising the balance needed, $40,000. The institution it will bring into operation will be one of the most useful ones in the Greater Victoria community, and among the most urgently needed

Seen in Passing

Everybody, more or less grumbles about the weather, and a few unreasonable individuals complain of the weather man, who cannot change anything. It should be remembered, however, that the trend most southerly miles on Vancouver Island comprise a region that has probably the most unpredictable weather in Canada. It is influenced by three large wind tracks, lies at the junction of land and sea, and is well within the radial region of two chains of hills We might also throw in the varying Japanese current, for which by the way someone ought to find another name

Anyone who served loyally in the ranks of the Canadian armed forces in the battle for freedom is entitled by every rule of decency to consider himself a Canadian citizen, if he wishes to be one There is a process by means of which that can be done. The ten in that instance is the record, which is service-to-this land in war is the highest type of loyalty that could be offered. Moreover, that is generally realized and conceded among the public

Lucifer in Starlight

On a starred night Prince Lucifer uprose
Tired of his dark dominion swung the lund
Above the rolling ball in cloud part screened
Where sinners hugged their spoire of repose
Poor prey to his hot fit of pride were those
And now upon his western wing he leaned
Now his huge bulk o'er Afric's sands careered
Now the black planet shadowed Arctic snows
Soaring through wider zones that pricked his scars
With memory of the old revolt from Awe.
He reached a middle height, and at the stars
Which are the brain of heaven, he looked, and sank
Around the ancient track marched rank on rank
The army of unalterable law.

The Bluenose

From M. Kelley

While Nova Scotia ships made maritime history in what writers of sea stories are still liable to call "the glorious days of sail," not one of the wind-driven square-riggers hailing from the Maritimes and engaged in racing tea from China or wool from Australia during the latter years of the nineteenth century ever attained so much international publicity as the schooner Bluenose.

Christened Bluenose, the schooner was designed and built in the Nova Scotia yards where a worthy competitor of Gloucester fishing vessels in racing days from the Grand Banks of Newfoundland to markets on the east coast seaboard. Her designer was W. J. Rose and her builders Smith and Rhuland.

At no time during the schooner's construction did anyone venture to predict, or even suggest, publicly at least, that she would bring fame to Canadian fishermen as the fastest wind-driven craft of North Atlantic fishing fleets following 1921, when she was launched.

Builders of Bluenose, no doubt as good workmen ever do, put their hearts into moulding her frames and lining her planking, fashioning for her plans of the designer with the happy result that, as one writer puts it, "There was something in her lines that no architect could capture in a blueprint and something in her hull that no shipwright could build to order for the schooner proved phenomenally fast, easy to handle and as safe as an ocean liner."

SCHOONER REALLY SNAKE

Naturally, her owners, when they realized the remarkable turn of speed their vessel possessed, were human enough to wonder what she could do against the speediest schooner Gloucester fishermen had owned and sailed; and seven months after her sea trials were completed she captured the Hellkx Herald's International Fishermen's Trophy, emblematic of the unofficial championship of the North Atlantic fishing fleets. Since that time, Bluenose successfully defended the trophy on a number of occasions, her last race being with the Gloucester schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud. The Thebaud defeated Bluenose over an exhibition race. That was in 1930. As a result opinion was divided as to over the sailing qualities of the two rivals.

When Bluenose and Thebaud finally came together in 1936 off Gloucester, the New Englanders decisively defeated the pride of Massachusetts fishermen. That brings to her famous skipper, the man who was probably able to exact all that Bluenose had to give over one hundred across the starting-line in a race for the coveted trophy—Captain Angus Walters.

Prize trophies generally produce squabbles with their possessors, rival skippers, over the weather and the gales giving way. But the frosty Captain Walters could be as belligerent as any, fighting for any advantage which he thinks he is entitled to accrue from argument. It was finally said of him that he "lacked an inch of all hell with one bucket of water."

Following the last race the trophy wasn't forthcoming right away. It was missing. Walters, followers of the fishermen's contests remembered, threatened to go through New England with a bill collector and a foundling home, where it was found. Then, bit of verse was written to it.

"Here a to Angus, good old sport,
Whose challenge sort of takes us short.
But send us a gale that blows us thirty,
And we'll bet our shirts on little Gerty."

Bluenose was exceptionally fast for a sailing craft. There's no doubt about that. A good many stories are told about her speed and power. Here's one told by Walters himself, which indicates the skipper has a sense of humor, too. Someone had asked him if Bluenose could sail as fast as was claimed

BEAT THE DOG STAR

"Can she sail?" Walters queried. "Man, she can sail like a comet. Didn't I ever tell you how she beat the Dog Star in a race from Gaul to Italy? 'Twas a line, brav tight and a boy was at the wheel. He hadn't much experience and he fell asleep a bit at watching, so, as I was going below for a little while I said to him: 'Boy, keep her on the Dog Star here and we'll be all right.'

Aye, aye, Sir, said the lad. Below for a while I left the boy to his task to-doze and presently he called down the companionway with a trace of excitement in his voice to it. Skipper, come up and find me another star—I've passed that one! I went on deck Sure enough the Dog Star was far astern. And the boy never knew exactly that he had left the schooner turn around on shore!"

And now the Bluenose, famous Nova Scotia fishing vessel, is reported to have struck a reef off Haiti, where she went to pieces. But there were no casualties this is a fine ending and for the first schooner than rotting away at a mooring in some slow-moving breweless backwater

Britain Uses Warplanes for Civil Needs

By E. C. SHEPHERD
North American Newspaper Alliance

LONDON, Feb. 4.—By Cable.—The British Overseas Airways Corporation announces its program of new and expanded services which have a high frequency rate of flights on certain trunk air routes.

There will, for instance, be three trips daily from London to India with a journey time of just over 27 hours. On the Atlantic route there will ultimately be four trips daily, and the crossing from London to New York will occupy 32 hours westbound, 17 hours eastbound.

Full realization of these plans is not expected until next year. They depend on the delivery of fewer than 150 aircraft. They cannot be fulfilled sooner, although B.O.A.C. has nearly 200 aircraft. This contrast vividly illustrates the need to have suitable aircraft and adequate ground organization.

Among the 200 aircraft at present being used by B.O.A.C. are 56 Dakotas supplied under lend-lease. As Congress agreed to the long-term payment proposed in the settlement of Britain's indebtedness for lend-lease goods retained after the war, these Dakotas become B.O.A.C.'s property.

They are likely to be handed over shortly to the new corporation which will operate the shorter routes with its London and European traffic. Its, for which services some 80 of the new Viking airliners are on order. Civil Dakotas are also available for long routes on which non-stop stages of between 1,000 and 2,000 miles will be flown.

The remainder of the fleet is an amazing mixture of prewar British aircraft and converted R.A.F. bombers and flying boats. The majority of the converted military aircraft are serving admirably. Lancastrians —adapted Lancaster bombers—are maintaining the longest and fastest regular service in the world.

Running between Melbourne and Sydney, 12,000 miles in 63 hours, they are flying a standard which no commercial aircraft of their performance, but they failed to provide the capacity to the limit of available engine power. This will come with the airliners now in the design stage Meanwhile, the operating corporation awaits delivery of the improvements which will be coming soon in small numbers. Expansion will probably be rapid during the second half of 1946.

In these facts can be seen the reason for the decision to buy five constellations from the United States. Without some such acquisition, B.O.A.C. could not operate its new daily land-plane service to New York before the end of the year. Its old daily land-plane service between Prestwick and Montreal is being operated with converted bombers. Given the constellations in good time and the Lancastrians by Fa, the daily London to New York service will operate by the end of June.

After that, Atlantic services will increase as fast as they can be developed until there are four daily in each direction. Under the new long-term services on the other routes will be increased and accelerated. Patience is the price Britain has to pay for putting everything into the war

AN EXPLANATION

Sir,—I share so fully the feelings of your correspondents who have taken exception to the use of the term "laborer" in a recent interview with me in your paper that I have to ask a little of your space in order to say so. If your interviewer will consult his notes of his memory I think he will probably find that the word was introduced by himself in the course of answering one of my observations. It is one which I would using with some care, because it supervises certain ancient class distinctions which have nothing to do with the kind of life lived in present-day North America—and very little indeed to do with the kind of life lived in present-day Great Britain under a "Labor" government.

In the case of myself, for instance, if I had a daughter I should first want to make sure that she and the man she proposed to marry had a genuine love for one another. After that I should not be greatly concerned about other matters. I think it certain that many of the latter Maisters and culture is desirable, and I know plenty of men working for a weekly or hourly wage who would satisfy all possible requirements on that score. Whether they are "laborers" or not I have no idea.

I do not share the views of those of your correspondents who object to that marriage with any member of an Oriental race is shocking.

Observation Car

By G.B.

Many thoughts and memories of the outside world fill through the minds of those lying flat on their backs in hospital wards. There is little to do except read, listen to radio programs and talk back and forth between beds. Life is dull and orderly The day starts with a boy washing, and it ends at 9 p.m. with a final dosen of medicine and "lights out." A slight amount of pleasure is added to the day by guessing when the cheerful nurses will bring for lunch and dinner There is no breakfast guessing Our is often too heavy after a night's rest, or the sudden bustle of a new lunger gives no time or desire for thinking about food. More than likely a patient thinks to himself: "Will I be able to get up today?" or "Wonder when the doctor will let me get up?" Once breakfast trays have been removed, the conversation swings into an amazing number of channels. Between morning and night it is not unusual to discuss politics, civil administration, doctors, the weather, methods of treatment, the late war, strikes, individual occupations, previous hospital experiences, nurses and other hospital employees. The man in the corner of our ward lies on his back and takes every thing in without uttering a word. We all feel very sorry for him and wish we could help. Four o'clock. He underwent a serious operation and two drainage tubes prevent him moving day nor night. In the next bed is a youth of 20, who despite his age has lived far more than his years. When rejected for military service, he refused a discharge and received a large amount of publicity when a new treating wound was cut. He is extremely dissatisfied at his progress toward recovery, and worries about the hills his kindly doctor is forming His parent, on the other hand, would cheerfully give anything to see the young man well and strong again. Farther along is "Dad," a man with a man of amazing energy for his age. "Once I am out of here you bet will never be laid up by sick me," he chuckles. Those of us who have been here longer don't think he is right. "Dad" is a great favorite with all the nurses. Tucked away in a corner is a young man suffering from sallows. Beside him is an outfit like a periscope still. It apparently humidifies the air and makes breathing easier and muddle of the north side of the ward is an individual who detests music He complained long and loud to the doctor about the radio. The doctor instantly told him if ordered up the other patients and would also do him good. Near the ward entrance is a real she engine lover. This will come as no surprise to those who have been in the Canadian Army When crossed by a locomotive whistle or whistle of prison camp guards in Weilphalia, Germany, and also at Aldershot in England. Now in his 1st smile, his toiled in shipyards throughout the World War.

Bracken Says Unemployment In Dominion Worse in West

OTTAWA, Feb. 4 (CP). — John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, returning here today from a tour of Western Canada, said that the "unemployment situation gets worse the farther West you go."

In a brief interview after stepping off a trans-continental train, Mr. Bracken said the housing shortage in the Dominion was deplorable.

"Controls have prevented private enterprise from building houses. Government plans have failed to meet the deficiency. The Government's paper plans were very little in evidence in reality."

As an example of the housing situation, Mr. Bracken pointed to the recent occupation of the old Vancouver Hotel by war veterans. The veterans had made the move to "force the authorities to action."

The people in British Columbia were particularly concerned about employment and housing, he said.

The people on the Prairies were concerned about the future of agriculture.

"Livestock people, more particularly hog producers, have lost confidence in Government plans and as a result production has dropped by one-half," said Mr. Bracken.

"Grain growers remember that in the first three years of the war they were required to take less than fair prices for their products and now, while the world price for wheat is approximately $2 a bushel, they are required to take for the portion used in Canada $1.25 per bushel and $1.55 for what is sent overseas.

"They are critical of the controls which requires such a large contribution by one class."

Mr. Bracken, commenting on the recent lifting of price controls on some 300 articles, said that the lessening of the rigidity of controls was welcomed.

"Business had felt that control had held back production, thus delaying normal return in our economy."

Business would no doubt welcome the relief from the "ridiculous" which discouraged production.

disposed of a Polish resolution designed to wind up the case in a manner satisfactory to Russia. Only the Polish delegate, Zygmunt Modzelewski, and M. Vishinsky voted for it.

After long debate, Russia suddenly withdrew her demand that the council compel Britain to order her troops from troubled Greece—and asked instead only assurance that they would leave "as soon as possible."

But Mr. Bevin objected immediately.

He said, "I am not willing to have a declaration on the withdrawal of British troops because Vishinsky doesn't say British troops do not menace peace—does Vishinsky accept that?"

BEVIN INSISTS COUNCIL CLEAR GREAT BRITAIN

Mr. Bevin went on to insist that the council give Britain a "clean bill" on the question raised by Russia whether the British troops in Greece had endangered international peace.

Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., of the United States, was the first council member to side with Britain. Declaring bluntly that the Greek situation did not jeopardize peace, he asked that the council take note of the statements made and dismiss the Soviet contention.

When the Security Council adjourned Mr. Bevin sat on the table and put stubbornly continued his argument with M. Vishinsky for about 15 minutes.

Mr. Bevin said the British Cabinet would never stand for anything less than reparation.

"You can settle this," he said. "Why don't you settle it?"

Mr. Vishinsky smilingly insisted on his version of the case.

"Well," said Mr. Bevin, "I didn't put it in here."

"You did. You should have taken it up with me. You should never have brought it here."

After a little more friendly conversation, Mr. Bevin grinned at the white-haired Russian diplomat, still wagging a finger, said: "I know you thought I put the Persian case in. I didn't. Just the contrary. And now this is a counter-attack."

"Oh no," M. Vishinsky retorted, laughing. "This is no Moscow propaganda."

How Flexible Is the Trolley Coach in Comparison to the Motor Bus?

A Trolley Coach would be as rigid as the present street car system. It would be absolutely inflexible to changing needs except at tremendous expense, and when changed, it again becomes as rigid as before. It does not permit testing or adaptation.

On the other hand, Motor Buses are as flexible as any automobile. Wherever there are roads, they can be driven. They can be re-routed or extended into new areas as required. When special vents take place and traffic is extraordinarily heavy, such as Exhibition Time, Race Meets, Hockey or other sports meets which cause large congregations, buses can be taken to these congested areas and pick you right up at the entrance and when loaded, pull out and go.

When a picnic is to be held at a beach on a bus route, special buses could be dispatched to the school grounds, church or any other meeting place and go directly to the beach and eliminate transfarring from one vehicle to another. There would be no charge other than the regular bus fare for this special service, with an exclusive motor bus operation.

Motor Buses would be adaptable to the ever-changing needs of a growing Greater Victoria, and instantly adaptable to avary emergency.

Only Motor Buses can give you such flexible service

Auditorium Offer Will Be Studied

An offer from Robert Noel to give the city a site for the site for an auditorium will be considered by the finance committee at a City Council meeting yesterday. Alderman Edward Williams, chairman of the committee, said the matter would be given careful consideration.

On a recommendation of the finance committee, approval was given the appointment of J. H. Oland as tax sales clerk and H. Easier as assessor's clerk.

When it was pointed out in a letter from Frank E. White that he was paying $30 a month rent for a property at 656 Blanshard Street, which the city rented to a lady at $18.50 a month, the council decided to give the woman concerned a month's notice of termination of her lease.

The council voted $125 for purchase of a cheque signing machine, and $40 for purchase of six directories.

Mayor Percy E. George and A. D. Macdonald, city comptroller, were authorized to conclude the sale and transfer of $13,800 in bonds.

Land sales totalling $6,350 were approved on a recommendation of the lands committee.

Four proposed changes in zoning were referred to the town planning commission for approval.

On a recommendation of the public works committee, the council approved a permit for a $45,000 alterations to the Imperial Bank on Douglas Yates and Government Streets.

Authority was granted to G. M. Irwin, city engineer, to take on as much help as needed to speed estimates and tabulations proposed public works. Mayor George urged that the assistance be obtained as soon as possible so that work long delayed by the war could be proceeded with.

The council turned down a suggestion that some of the money collected from license fees be used to install bicycle racks downtown. Alderman D. J. D. Hunter pointed out that racks had been tried in previous years and had not proved successful.

When Alderman Hunter pointed out that service station and garage owners, and others with private driveways were using space which might otherwise be used by the public for parking the Council decided to consider opening a yearly rental. Alderman Hunter said he understood this practice was followed in Vancouver.

Elmore Philpott Says U.N. Will Work if Supported

Mr. Elmore Philpott, radio news analyst, came to Victoria yesterday to lecture to the Women's Canadian Club at the Empress Hotel. Mr. Philpott had three main points to make. First, he believed the United Nations would work given the right opportunity and backing; second, he believed the British Empire could [illegible] the future, and third, he wanted to see more friendship between the Soviet Union and Great Britain.

"I am glad," he began, "to come to this super-British city to say that if there is anything that gives me a pain in the neck, it is these superpatriots who consider any person anti-British who dares to criticize things which they consider are running the British Empire today.

"I do not consider myself anti-British. I don't think the Empire is all washed up. I don't think Britain's finest hour was necessarily when she stood alone. I think she can rise to a finer period than ever before. And one of the ways is by treating Russia to her own gaze and going to the people with a program that will liberate the downtrodden peoples.

Mr. Philpott stated that the structure of the United Nations was superior to that of the League of Nations, but he was certain it would fail if Britain and Russia were antagonistic toward one another.

We can be friends with the Soviet," said Mr. Philpott. Britain and Russia will soon realize their needs and ideas coincide."

He regretted that Britain had not taken the free-river loan from the Soviet Union instead of the States, and thought she would have been in a better position for permanent prosperity had she gone to Russia. He believed that the Soviet had a great need for the consumer goods that Britain could supply so well.

The commentator said that another threat to the strength of the United Nations was in the small representation from the vast section of the yellow, brown and black part of the world with its overwhelming numbers.

PRAISES BRITISH LEAD FOR WORLD ASSEMBLY

Mr Philpott had high praise for the British Commonwealth in taking the lead in the urge for world [illegible] and for Mr. Ernest Bevin, British Foreign Minister, who stood in Parliament and came out flat for world federation."

"Let's not kid ourselves, either," said Mr. Philpott, "one of the big advantages to world parliament is that if we have to have nations competing as rivals, it is better for them to do so on the stage of the United Nations, where everyone can see them. They will all have to answer to world opinion."

Mr. Philpott said the organization was still in a flimsy state, but stated that unless it could be run successfully in its birth stages there was not much hope for a more sweeping form of international organization.

He said there were two schools of thought about the shape the United Nations should take. The first, which he did not support, was the group which favored the inclusion of only a few strong nations which would form a single federation utilizing one trading system, one law, one monetary system and one army, navy and air force. The second group which he did favor, was that which was trying to transform the United Nations into a world body composed of even the smallest nations.

"I have advocated international federation for years," said Mr. Philpott, "and I have said there would be no guarantee of world peace until we have international government. We need membership of all the nations with an overpowering assembly—and I mean nations of all colors and creeds."

Mr. Philpott diverged slightly from his topic to comment on the [illegible] frequent criticisms from the United States regarding India and home rule.

"It always amuses me," he said, when I realize there are 12 million negroes in the United States who have barely more civil liberty than the people in India. But they seldom talk about that." Heartily applauded, Mr. Philpott added, "However, if we look around, we can all be accused of one-eyed blindness."

Beaver Club Worker Returns to City

Courtesy Times

MISS LOTTIE BOWRON

WIDELY known throughout the province, has recently returned to Victoria after spending the past seven years in London, England and Paris there. Miss Bowron served with the Beaver Club from the time it was opened by the King and Queen in February, 1941 until she sailed for Canada in December, 1945. She served as club librarian and as secretary of the entertainment committee. Miss Bowron also did volunteer service at the British Columbia House Services Canteen.

A few days prior to her departure for Canada, Mr. W. A. MacAdam, British Columbia Agent-General in London, presented Miss Bowron with the Certificate of Service for British Columbia women. Miss Bowron, in speaking of the honor she received and of her experiences at British Columbia House Canteen, expressed high praise to both Mr. MacAdam and Mrs. MacAdam for their wonderful work among Canadian servicemen.

15 MILLION SERVICEMEN SERVED AT CLUB

The Beaver Club, just off Trafalgar Square, was organized with the idea of providing a meeting place and general headquarters for Canadians overseas. Miss Bowron said, adding that according to recent figures, 15 million men had been served at the club. The building contained 60 to 70 rooms, including snack bar, billiard room, library, dance floor, etc.

There was something doing for all, practically continuously, dances were held every week, afternoon teas were held Sunday for Canadians only, shows and movies were shown and once a month a hospital "blues" party was held for hospitalized servicemen. There were just a few of many of the activities the club provided.

In the library, nearly 100 Canadian daily newspapers were on file, and a great number of weeklies.

"They were read to ribbons," Miss Bowron said. A familiar scene was when a serviceman would [illegible] at the club and sometimes did [illegible] remark, "I don't suppose you have my paper," and then receive the pleased expression when he found that the club did have "his" paper.

BRITISH COLUMBIANS DO THEIR SHARE

"There was a tremendous amount of work involved for the volunteers and staff of the club. It was a work of love, but it was hard work." Miss Bowron remembers the visitors from British Columbia certainly did their share in doing hours and hours and giving of their time freely for the club, she said. Among those from British Columbia were Mrs. H. P. Sloan, Dunsmuir; Mrs. Dunsmuir, Victoria; Mrs. Maurice Angell; Mrs. T. Humber Rickerd; Mrs. Kaye Blandie; Mrs. Bessie Rose; Mrs. Wynne Winsby; Mrs. Angus Cameron, of Duncan; and Miss Elsie Jolie. Miss Bowron also paid great tribute to the Kilties girls who volunteered to work at the club. "It was grand the way they stuck with the job until the end," she said.

Miss Bowron is very proud of British Columbia and the work done by its citizens overseas. She is now secretary to the late Sir Richard McBride for many years, rural teachers' adviser in British Columbia and during the war of 1914-18 served with the British Admiralty. At present she is a guest of Miss Alma Russell, 1586 Victoria Avenue.

The Parcel-Tracker radio program at 8 p.m. Wednesday will present a summary of the work being done this Winter by discussion groups. The Victoria and District F.-T. Council convener for discussion groups, Mrs. M. L. Brown, will be the leader. Those taking part will be Mrs. J. E. Moss, North Ward P.-T.A.; Mrs. J. K. Thompson, Kyuquot P.-T.A.; Mrs. F. E. Barrett-Margaret Jenkins P.-T.A.; Mrs. I. R. Champion and Mrs. L. A. Gordon of Oakland P.-T.A. Mr. Walter Kilby will announce the program.

B.C. Toy Club Will Have Active Year

As charitable institutions in Great Britain are still in great need of toys the British Columbia Toy Club has outlined a program of toymaking sufficient to fill eight large cases weighing approximately 200 pounds each. Two cases will leave as soon as shipping space permits.

Monthly meeting of the club will be held in the workroom, 1008 Government Street, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and from 10.30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Letters to the Editor

No letter to the editor will be inserted except over the proper signature and address of the writer. This rule admits of no exception. No letter should exceed 300 words. Brief and concise replies are considered most likely to be published.

FOUGHT FOR CANADA

Sir,—In your Saturday, February 2, issue you published a letter to which I object.

Your correspondent advocates sending all of German birth, whether citizens or not, back to Germany. Does our friend realize that a lot of these people have fought for Canada in the last war? Does he realize that during the last war Canadians forces during the last Great War? If she does not she should consult the records.

I had five years and eight months' service, most of that overseas, and my tour included Sicily, Italy and Northwest Europe. While over there I nobody ever suggested sending me back to Germany. Do you think that makes me eligible to remain, or my cousin who served with distinction in the R.C.A.F.?

No doubt a lot of Germans should be returned, but, please remember that some of us at least earned our citizenship the hard way, and I mean hard, and should be allowed to live our own lives in Canada without any dirty cracks from some narrow-minded people who, by accident, are British by birth. After all, I, too, defended Canada.

So your correspondent and all who share her views should remember that no matter what one thinks of Germany or the people in it, there are some who, in spite of their origin, are every bit as good Canadians as those born here.

E. SUDHURS.

Malaspina Hotel Manager Retires

Thomas Stevenson, for 13 years manager of the Malaspina Hotel, Nanaimo, has retired and will return to his home in Victoria to live.

Directors of the Malaspina presented him with an elaborately engraved silver tray, the presentation being made by F. B. Cunliffe, chairman, in tribute to 13 years' service.

Prior to going to Nanaimo, Mr. Stevenson was manager of the Dominion Hotel here, being succeeded by Hotel here being succeeded by William J. Clark, present manager.

His successor at the Nanaimo hotel will be Fred Hall.

London Market

LONDON, Feb. 4 (Reuters).—Support for gilt-edged stocks and Mexican oil featured the stock markets today.

American interest again was seen in Royal Dutch, Anglo-American, Rubber Hill and Burma Corporation. Although actual buying ceased around middays in these interests, sufficiently good buying limits were left to effect undue falls should local operators become sellers.

Record for sales for this year caused strong gains for Hudson's Bay, but few shares changed hands.
